Nationally acclaimed educator Ann H. Cary, Ph.D., has worked in higher education for 25 years. Prior to joining the UMKC School of Nursing and Health Studies as dean, she served as director and professor of the School of Nursing at Loyola University in New Orleans.

Cary’s areas of expertise include leadership, public health and nursing, environmental health, case management, ethics and credentialing; federal and private grants for new programming to expand graduate education; and web-based professional development products.

In July, she was named to an advisory committee in association with The Arnold P. Gold Foundation and the American Association of Colleges of Nursing to help establish guidelines for a national program, which will recognize nurses who demonstrate leadership in compassionate, humanistic care.

Cary has authored more than 70 publications and remains an active leader in interprofessional organizations.
