WHAT IS WORK AUTHORIZATION?

J-2 dependents of J-1 students and scholars are eligible for employment authorization during the J-1’s stay. A J-2 dependent may apply to the US Citizenship and Immigration Services for work authorization. The authorization is granted on a card, mailed to the applicant if and when the authorization is granted. This card is known as an Employment Authorization Document, usually referred to as an EAD. With J-2 work authorization, you may work part-time or full-time, at any job, for any employer. There is no legal limit to the amount that you may earn.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION:

- USCIS issues work authorization for a J-2 under strict guidelines from the State Department and states employment for J-2 dependents may not be used to provide the basic needs or educational expenses of the J-1.
- J program’s terms may make it impossible for a spouse to change status after arrival in the US. J-2 work authorization is not intended to accommodate dual-career couples or provide the basis for professional employment.
- Employment authorization is valid for any type of employment and even several jobs at the same time. The application does not depend on an offer of employment, nor is it restricted to any previous area of experience the applicant may have.
- Applications may take 90-120 days to be processed.
- The J-2’s work authorization period is tied to the J-1’s program. If the J-1 will be extending their program, you will want to wait until the extension has been granted before renewing work authorization.
- If the J-1 changes his or her status to another classification, such as H-1 or F-1, the J-2 will have to change their status to H-4 or F-2, respectively and therefore, stop employment once the change of status becomes effective. Even though the J-2 may still have a valid Employment Authorization Document (EAD), they are not permitted to work unless their spouse holds J-1 status.
- You do not need a job offer prior to applying.
- If you transfer to another institution, or if you violate your visa status, your employment authorization will be terminated with your DS-2019.
- You will need to have a Social Security number in order to work in the US.
- Your earnings as a J-2 dependent will be subject to applicable federal, state, social security, and local taxes; also, employers are required by law to withhold those taxes from your paychecks.

AFTER I HAVE GATHERED ALL OF THE ABOVE, WHAT DO I DO?

Bring in all of the above documents to ISAO for review. After review, you will be directed to mail the packet to Immigration.

WHEN WILL I GET AN ANSWER FROM USCIS?

USCIS may take 3 months or more to make a final decision regarding your employment authorization. You may not work until you receive your card! When you receive your card, we will also need a copy of it. You should get a receipt notice from USCIS within two to three weeks. The receipt will include a case number that allows you to check its status online at www.uscis.gov. When your work permit is approved, you will receive a wallet-sized plastic card in the mail with your photo on it. You can only work during the dates on the card, and you cannot start work until you receive the card.

A final warning: If you apply to USCIS for a work permit, DO NOT leave the U.S. until it is approved. During this time, you may be tempted to leave the United States – perhaps to take a vacation or return home for a visit -- especially during summertime. Don’t leave! Doing so will automatically cancel your work permit application. (In fact, leaving the United States is almost always considered an abandonment of applications filed with USCIS.)
